Official Biography

Susie Stevens is a prominent Los Angeles vocal recording artist. Coming from a family of recording artists and musicians, she began her extensive career as a child and went on to obtain her Bachelor of Arts degree in Vocal Performance at California State University Northridge.

Susie has recorded with critically acclaimed composers such as John Williams, Randy Newman, Thomas Newman, John Debney, Alf Clausen, Danny Elfman, James Horner, and Hans Zimmer to name only a few.

Susie's songwriting has been featured in some of Disney's live show arenas. She has also written for various children's projects, and a main title theme for a possible upcoming animated series entitled, "What's Wrong With Me Dr. Cranston?" Most recently, Susie has been passionately writing music and lyric, on a journey of personal artistry.

As an active member of the Los Angeles recording scene for years, she has also enjoyed recording as character voice talent, bringing a new kind of crossover performance to the industry.

Susie's talents include a dynamic range of vocal styles, including pop/rock, country, and classical. Her multitude of skills and ability to take direction are a major resource for the industry. She has recorded for countless film and television scores, live show pre-records and has backed up world famous solo recording artists such as Phil Collins, Kelly Clarkson, Trisha Yearwood, Michael Jackson, Harry Connick Jr., Amy Grant, Barry Manilow, Barbra Streisand, Vince Gill, Andy Williams, Celine Dion, and many more.
